

Andres Bustamente CTO of Authomata (Chile)

Andres is the CTO of Authomata, a platform that helps companies in their digital transformation journey. He is a labour psychologist, master in business engineering and information technologies, and specialist in service design. He has around 200 technology projects under his belt and over 20 years doing projects in both the public and private sector.

Named as one of the 100 most influential people in digital government, he was lucky enough to implement national scale projects in the Chilean public sector, as well as achieving the approval of the digital transformation bill in congress. He likes to constantly research emerging technologies and anything that accelerates the development of solutions.
